QIV Read the following passage and answer the questions :

Rock paintings dating to stone ages have been discovered in many countries. In India, there are rock painting sites in the states of Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Uttarkhand, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, and Telangana. The rock paintings in the caves at Bhimbetka are famous. Bhimbetka is a world Heritage site.

Rock paintings usually depict human, animal and geometric figures. However, the style of rock paintings seems to be changing according to the cultural changes from stone ages to the beginning of agriculture. The change is visible in the depiction of flora and fauna or it may be evident in the style of portraying various figures and also in the colours that were used. Black, red, and white colours were made from natural substances with the help of rock paintings we can understand the knowledge of ancient people about their natural surroundings and also the way they exploited available natural resources.
